ABOUT ME

I am a curious and motivated individual with a growing passion for technology and web development. My journey in computer science started with a simple interest in how websites work, which gradually turned into a habit of building and experimenting with my own ideas. I enjoy creating clean and user-friendly digital experiences while continuously learning new tools and technologies.

Beyond coding, I actively engage in debate and public speaking, which has shaped my confidence, communication, and ability to think critically. I enjoy working in collaborative environments, sharing ideas, and learning from others. I am driven by curiosity, creativity, and a desire to keep improving—both as a developer and as a person.
